

June 1, 2014 — FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BLUE NIGHT RECORDS

is pleased to announce the new

John Malcolm Penn CD “Driftin’ River”

Category: Americana / Roots / Folk

John Malcolm Penn follows his previous Blue Night Records release of “Hangtown Fry” with yet another gem, “Driftin’ River”. Once more this California-based songwriter has put together a collection of original tunes that cements his reputation as a serious storyteller. On this musical outing, we get a further glimpse into the folksy and homespun world of Mr. Penn. He plays all the instruments, as usual, and adds his roots-laden vocals that are so easily recognizable. These real-life stories and tributes, with musical notes attached, are not only entertaining, but thought provoking as well. “Driftin’ River” also contains several instrumentals that are a real plus, and serve to keep the mood rolling.

If you are not already familiar with John, then ask Guy Clark or Rodney Crowell. Both are long-time friends. They will tell you of the formative years in Southern California when the music flowed and creative originality was paramount. The passage of time does nothing to dim that notion in the heart of a true bard. This recording is a solid testament to that fact. So we invite you to drift along with this exciting new release from Blue Night Records, as John Malcolm Penn takes you on another journey of the heart with “Driftin’ River”.
